Hostler Burrows expands to the West Coast. The gallery will open a space designed by architect Linda Taalman in Los Angeles next month. Located at 6819 Melrose Avenue in a building that was constructed in 1928, the three-thousand-square-foot-gallery will feature an open main space with an additional project room. “We are always exploring new opportunities to broaden the audience for our contemporary program, and this feels like a natural next step in the gallery’s development,” said gallery cofounder Juliet Burrows.

Burrows and Kim Hostler established the design gallery in New York in 1998. Initially, it was dedicated solely to Nordic design and decorative arts, but the gallery has since expanded its program and now includes a roster of emerging and veteran contemporary artists, including Jasmin Anoschkin, Pekka Paikkar, Ohad Tsfati, and Eva Zethraeus.
